

Charlton Court, Kilmersdon, Somerset

Client: Private client

Project dates: 2011 - 2012

Proposed house and garden, viewed from the east

Occupying the site of the former Charlton House (demolished in the 1950s) a new country house is to be built at Kilmersdon in Somerset. The house is designed in a traditional style strongly influenced by the Arts and Crafts design movement. The garden has been designed to complement this style. It will have a hierarchy of spaces, with formal gardens arranged immediately around the house. These will be separated from the wider parkland by iron railings and a cattle grid on the main drive. The historic entrance gate to Charlton Court is to be dismantled, repaired and re-erected.

19th century entrance gate to Charlton Court

Bird's eye view (from the north) of proposed house and gardens